NEEDS ASSESSMENT

COVID-19 has brought unique challenges to the management of sleep laboratories and patients with sleep disorders. New protocols and guidelines will be needed at local and national levels for providers, DME suppliers and insurers to support these changes in care.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this talk, individuals will:

1. To understand what we know about the potential spread of SARS-CoV2 by non-invasive ventilation.
2. To make protocols to safety issues in reopening sleep labs during the pandemic

3. To understand potential reimbursement and supply issues in reopening sleep labs during the pandemic
4. To discuss possible changes to guidelines in the management of sleep patients based on limitations due to COVID

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 *AMA PRA Category I Credit(s)*TM. Physicians should only claim the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
