

Yale SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Dean's Lecture and Program on Aging Seminar

The Link Between Health Care Spending and Health Outcomes

Jonathan Skinner, PHD

Professor
The Dartmouth Institute

Jonathan Skinner is the James O. Freedman Presidential Professor in Economics at Dartmouth College and a professor at the Geisel School of Medicine's Institute for Health Policy and Clinical Practice. Skinner's research interests include the economics of government transfer programs, technology growth and disparities in health care, and the savings behavior of aging baby boomers. He is currently director of the Aging Program at the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER), and a member of the National Academy of Medicine. He is a former associate editor of the American Economist Journal: Economic Policy, and a former editor of the Journal of Human Resources. He received his Ph.D. in Economics from UCLA, and a B.A. in political science and economics from the University of Rochester. He has also taught at the University of Virginia, the University of Washington, Stanford University, and Harvard University.

Wednesday, November 6, 2019
Winslow Auditorium
60 College Street
Lower Level
12:00-1:00 pm

Co-sponsored by: Program on Aging, the Yale School of Public Health

Lunch for participants served in the lobby from 1:00 pm-1:30 pm.

Please consider bringing your own sustainable food/beverage containers.

