

April Seminar Notice
State Sleep Conference

Presented by
Yale University School of Medicine's
Section of Pulmonary, Critical Care & Sleep Medicine

Neuropsychiatric Aspects of Restless Leg Syndrome [RLS]

Hochang Benjamin Lee, M.D.
Associate Professor of Psychiatry
Director, Psychological Medicine Service
Yale University School of Medicine

Wednesday, April 16, 2014 at 2pm
Fitkin Amphitheater

Host: Meir Kryger, M.D.

There is no corporate support for this activity
This course will fulfill the licensure requirement set forth by the State of Connecticut

ACCREDITATION The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.	DESIGNATION STATEMENT The Yale School of Medicine designates this educational activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)[™]. Physicians should only claim the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
NEEDS ASSESSMENT RLS is a common neurological sensorimotor disorder that has been reported to affect up to 7% of the Western population. Neuropsychiatric symptoms are a common co-morbidity of RLS, and it is important to recognize these symptoms as they are encountered in general clinical practice. LEARNING OBJECTIVES At the conclusion of this activity, participants will: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Recognize the common features and strong association between RLS and depression.2. Understand the personality aspects of RLS.3. Understand the personality aspects of RLS.	FACULTY DISCLOSURES It is the policy of Yale School of Medicine, Continuing Medical Education, to ensure balance, independence, objectivity and scientific rigor in all its educational programs. All faculty participating as speakers in these programs are required to disclose any relevant financial relationship(s) they (or spouse or partner) have with a commercial interest that benefits the individual in any financial amount that has occurred within the past 12 months; and the opportunity to affect the content of CME about the products or services of the commercial interests. The Center for Continuing Medical Education will ensure that any conflicts of interest are resolved before the educational activity occurs.