Dr. Matthew Shaw, Chair for the Child and Adolescent Training Program at the Western New England Institute for Psychoanalysis, will present close-process case material from analyses conducted with a child and an adolescent. The presentations will allow audience members to see contemporary psychoanalytic practice in the context of chaotic, challenging clinical situations. The first analysis involves early maternal illness and its impact on the development of a child. The second analysis involves issues of race, class, and identity in an adolescent.

Dr. Norka Malberg, internationally acclaimed author, speaker and psychoanalyst, will discuss the case material specifically and psychoanalysis in general.

Hosted by Western New England Psychoanalytic Institute
