

Department of Molecular Biophysics and Biochemistry
Departmental Colloquium

Wesley Grueber, Ph.D.

Department of Physiology & Cellular Biophysics

Columbia University

Assembly and maintenance of somatosensory circuits: insights from Drosophila

We are interested in the interactions between neurons and their local environment during development and aging of the nervous system. I will discuss our recent work suggesting that alterations in adhesion systems that maintain neurons during development contributes to neuronal atrophy and dysfunction during aging.

Monday, November 9, 2015

HOPE 216

3:45 Tea 4:00 Seminar

Host: Tony Koleske

Supported by the Mrs. Hepsa Ely Silliman Memorial Fund