NEEDS ASSESSMENT

Systemic Juvenile Idiopathic Arthritis (SJIA) is an autoinflammatory disease of childhood that carries significant morbidity and potential mortality if not recognized and treated. We will review the presentation of SJIA, its treatment, and the important comorbidities that require rapid recognition to prevent poor outcomes.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the end of this activity, participants will be able to:

1. The learner will be able to diagnose SJIA on the basis of the currently used ILAR criteria
2. The learner will be able to rapidly recognize the signs and symptoms of Macrophage Activation Syndrome and SJIA related lung disease
3. The learner will become familiar with the common treatment modalities for SJIA

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)[™]. Physicians should only claim the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

FACULTY DISCLOSURES

Edward M. Behrens, MD: None
Prina Weiss, MD, Grand Rounds Director: None

It is the policy of Yale School of Medicine, Continuing Medical Education, to ensure balance, independence, objectivity and scientific rigor in all its educational programs. All faculty participating as speakers in these programs are required to disclose any relevant financial relationship(s) they (or spouse or partner) have with a commercial interest that benefits the individual in any financial amount that has occurred within the past 12 months; and the opportunity to affect the content of CME about the products or services of the commercial interests. The Center for Continuing Medical Education will ensure that any conflicts of interest are resolved before the educational activity occurs.
