ACCREDITATION:

The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

TARGET AUDIENCE:

ObGyn attending physicians, house staff/fellows, medical students, nurses, PA's, community Ob/Gyn's, residents, midwives, nurses and researchers.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT:

Authors have many choices about where and how to publish their work. This talk will cover the history of academic publishing, including the roles of scientific societies and commercial publishers, the movement toward Open Access, and the use of pre-print servers and repositories as alternative ways to make one's work available. The talk will also address several types of publishing fraud. Ob/Gyn journals will provide key examples of the present models.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

At the end of this presentation, attendees will be able to:

1. Listeners will understand the development of the traditional subscription publishing model and its disadvantages;
2. Listeners will understand the financial costs and benefits of different models; and
3. Listeners will be able to use this information to inform their decisions on where to publish their work.
