- ~ Analyze the current status of genomics and molecular targeted therapy in ovarian and uterine cancer
- ~ Select the appropriate therapy for ovarian and uterine cancer treatment

This conference is held in memory of Ella T. Grasso, born Ella Rose Tambussi. During the Second World War she served as assistant director of research for the War Manpower Commission of Connecticut. She became the first woman to be elected Floor Leader of the House in 1955 and was also the first woman to chair the Democratic State Platform Committee, serving from 1956-68. In 1974 her winning streak was extended when the people of Connecticut chose her as the nation’s first woman to be elected governor in her own right—the capstone of a long and successful career dedicated to public service, effective government and the democratic process. In 1980, Grasso was diagnosed with ovarian cancer; ill-health led to her resignation in December of that year. She passed away in Hartford, CT on February 5, 1981.

The conference was originally established by Drs. Steven Curry and Peter E. Schwartz, as a joint effort between their two institutions, the University of Connecticut and Yale University, to honor Governor Grasso and to provide the latest information regarding the care of Gynecologic cancer patients to the physicians of Connecticut. It remains one of the longest running cooperative programs involving these two institutions.
