To record your attendance to this activity, text the Activity Code (20523) for your RSS activity to 203-442-9435. You will receive a message back that verifies your activity attendance has been recorded for CME credit.

There is no corporate support for this activity. Accreditation: The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians. Target Audience: YSM faculty, fellows, and staff, and local GI physicians. Designation Statement: The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)[™]. Physicians should only claim the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity. Needs assessment: This course is needed due to the emergence of the COVID-19 pandemic caused by the SARS-CoV-2 virus. COVID-19 is commonly associated with liver injury and coagulopathy, but the mechanism of these disease manifestations is poorly understood. This course will present new research that enhances our understanding of liver injury in COVID-19. Objectives: 1) Participants will gain an understanding of COVID-19-associated coagulopathy; 2) Participants will learn about new associations between clinical markers of coagulopathy and liver injury in COVID-19; 3) Participants will learn about the model of thromboinflammatory liver injury in COVID-19 supported by new in vitro data with primary human cells. Faculty Disclosures: M McConnell - None; Iwakiri - None. It is the policy of Yale School of Medicine, Continuing Medical Education, to ensure balance, independence, objectivity and scientific rigor in all its educational programs. All faculty participating as speakers in these programs are required to disclose any relevant financial relationship(s) they (or spouse or partner) have with a commercial interest that benefits the individual in any financial amount that has occurred within the past 12 months; and the opportunity to affect the content of CME about the products or services of the commercial interests. The Center for Continuing Medical Education will ensure that any conflicts of interest are resolved before the educational activity occurs. This course will fulfill the licensure requirement set forth by the State of Connecticut.
