ACCREDITATION

The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Attending physicians, house staff/fellows, medical students, nurses, physician assistants.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT

The field of Interventional Pulmonology is a relatively new sub-specialty of Pulmonary and Critical Care Medicine that was created to fill both a knowledge and procedural-skills gap that was present in standard PCCM training. This talk will review the need for sub- sub- specialty training, as well as the pros and cons associated with this endeavor.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants will:

1. Understand the knowledge gap in standard PCCM training

2. Understand the procedural-skills gap in standard PCCM training
3. Appreciate the benefits and down-sides to sub- sub-specialization

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 *AMA PRA Category I Credit(s)*TM. Physicians should only claim the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

FACULTY DISCLOSURES

Richard Matthay, MD, Course Director – No conflict of interest
David Feller-Kopman, MD – No conflict of interest

It is the policy of Yale School of Medicine, Continuing Medical Education, to ensure balance, independence, objectivity, and scientific rigor in all its educational programs. All faculty participating as speakers in these programs are required to disclose any relevant financial relationship(s) they (or spouse or partner) have with a commercial interest that benefits the individual in any financial amount that has occurred within the past 12 months; and the opportunity to affect the content of CME about the products or services of the commercial interests. The Center for Continuing Medical Education will ensure that any conflicts of interest are resolved before the educational activity occurs.
