

Journal Club Series

The spring 2022 session of the HTI faculty-led journal club series will begin on January 11th. Each seminar will involve a critical review of one recent cutting-edge publication from an area of human immunology and/or translational/clinical immunologic research presented by an HTI faculty member engaged in that area.

We welcome all HTI faculty and trainees in HTI labs to engage in an open discussion about the science presented. The article to be discussed will be sent out one week prior to the presentation. We encourage all attendees to come ready with questions and insightful commentary to drive the discussion and make this a truly interactive learning opportunity.
