

Journal Club Series

The fall 2021 session of the HTI faculty-led journal club series will begin on October 12th. Each seminar will involve a critical review of one recent cutting-edge publication from an area of human immunology and/or translational/clinical immunologic research presented by an HTI faculty member engaged in that area.

We welcome all faculty and trainees interested in human and translational immunology to engage in an open discussion about the science presented. The article to be discussed will be sent out one week prior to the presentation. We encourage all attendees to come ready with questions and insightful commentary to drive the discussion and make this a truly interactive learning opportunity.
