ACCREDITATION

The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Faculty, residents, students and staff involved in education of health care professional trainees.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT

There is an important need for general internists to understand the value of community level primary care assessment for policy and health planning, and the advantages of community-based participatory research methods for studying health systems.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants will be able to:

1. How can the tools of literary and historical criticism be used to examine medical issues?
2. Can we develop an interpretive framework of medical humanities which intersects with the mission and goals of general internal medicine?
3. What can a humanities and social sciences approach offer in understanding and contextualizing a specific medical practice - diagnosis?

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 *AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)*TM. Physicians should only claim the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
