ACCREDITATION

The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Attending physicians, clinical and basic scientists, nurses, residents, fellows, medical students, and other health care providers.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT

Many inborn errors of metabolisms (IEMS) are associated with increased risks of cancers. The recent studies have strengthened a link between them. However, the mechanisms remain unknown in most of cases. Lot of observations in clinic offer an important opportunity for further investigations and could have a significant impact on cancer research

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- 1) Present a case with IEM and cancer risk
- 2) Review the literature about the general link between IEM and cancer risk
- 3) Discuss the potential mechanisms for further investigation

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)TM. Physicians should only claim the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
