ACCREDITATION

The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to sponsor continuing medical education for physicians.

TARGET AUDIENCE

The target audience for the Dermatology Grand Rounds is composed of attending physicians, residents, fellows, medical students, nurses, and other health care providers.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT

Nail disorders are a specialized area of dermatology and dermatopathology in which there have been continuous advances regarding the diagnosis and monitoring of them. This lecture addresses the need for clinicians to be updated on these aspects of nail disease to provide state of the art care to patients.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants will be able to:

1. Describe new onychoscopy features which can distinguish trachyonychia (20 nail dystrophy) from onychomycosis.
2. Present data to patients regarding the prognosis and potential diagnoses of longitudinal erythronychia.
3. Employ nail clippings in children for a more accurate diagnosis of nail unit psoriasis.

This course will fulfill the licensure requirement set forth by the State of Connecticut.
There is no corporate support for this activity.

CME CREDIT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this educational activity for 1 *AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)*TM. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
