Objective: To provide a virtual forum for members of the Yale health professions community to meet and to share original research, projects, and programs related to global health. Abstracts in all areas (both domestic and international) of global health are welcome, including those related to ethics, law, and social justice; education and capacity building; socio-economic determinants of health; and novel technologies for global health.

Who May Apply: Students, Residents, Staff, Fellows, and Faculty of the Yale Schools of Medicine, Nursing, and Public Health; and the Yale School of Medicine Physician Associate Program

Posters must have been accepted for presentation at a local, regional, national, or international conference since April 2019-March 2021

Instructions: Submissions must include

- a) a PDF version of the poster (with no copied ClipArt to avoid copyright violations),
- b) title and date of the meeting where the poster was previously or will be presented, and
- c) the name and Yale affiliation of the primary author.

Please e-mail your abstract to Dr. Tracy Rabin (tracy.rabin@yale.edu) and Laura Crawford (laura.crawford@yale.edu) by March 4, 2021.

This poster session is part of the week's activities, culminating in the Tenth Annual Global Health Day addressing

“Global Health Capacity Building at Yale – Past, Present, and Future”

(details on the YSM Events Calendar)
