Pathology Grand Rounds
Thursday, September 15th 12:30-1:30 pm

Hosted by: Marcello DiStasio, MD

David Hafler, MD
Professor and Chairman, Department of Neurology, Yale School of Medicine

The Pathophysiology of Multiple Sclerosis

Objectives: Identify the role of immune cells in causing MS. Understand how genetic variants drive immune cell function. Identify the molecular mechanisms associated with loss of Treg function in driving autoimmune disease.