ACCREDITATION

The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Attending physicians, researchers, house staff, fellows, residents, medical students, nurses.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT

Corona virus disease 2019 (COVID-19) is a new disease entity that is being described as a result of the SARS-COV-2 infection, which has led to a pandemic. A broad pathological description is required which will form the basis on ongoing clinical and scientific research. The presenters discuss slides and images derived from their cohort of patients who died from COVID-19. The material they show will be examples of the most significant findings from their cohort and, given the limited availability of this material, will be a useful learning experience for those attending the session.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants will be able to:

- Describe the major histopathological findings in severe fatal COVID-19.
- Describe the less common but significant histopathological findings in severe fatal COVID-19.
- Understand the pathophysiology of severe fatal COVID-19.

- Discuss the findings with the presenters and discuss their own interpretation of the findings.

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)[™]. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
