ACCREDITATION

The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Attending physicians, researchers, house staff, fellows, residents, medical students, nurses.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT

An understanding of pancreatic cancer genetics and biology has rapidly evolved over the past 10 years. There is a need for the pathology community to understand this information for improved pancreatic cancer diagnosis and use of biomarkers to stratify patients for clinical management and trials.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants will be able to:

- Understand the two transcriptional phenotypes of pancreatic cancer, and their clinical significance.
- Understand how genetics play a role in pancreatic cancer biology.
- Understand how to use biomarkers to identify pancreatic cancer subtypes.

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
