

Volunteers needed for interviews about cancer & incarceration

Are you willing to share your experience of being diagnosed with cancer during or after incarceration? You may be eligible for a one-to-one interview for a study that will help us understand the experience of cancer diagnosis and care during incarceration and after release.

You May Qualify If You:

- are 18 years or older
- released from prison or jail less than two years ago
- were diagnosed with cancer while incarcerated or within a year of release
- speak English

Potential Benefits

There are no immediate benefits to you, but this study may help improve cancer screening and care in the future for people who are incarcerated or recently released.

Participation Involves:

- A 60-minute interview over the phone/zoom or in person to share your thoughts and experiences
- Interviews are recorded and confidential.

Location: online via zoom, a CT Transitions clinic near you, or a private location near you

Participants will be compensated $50 per interview via cash, electronic transfer, or an online gift card.
