NEEDS ASSESSMENT

The definition of an adequate margin after breast conserving surgery has been disputed for decades. This course will review how the breast conservation margins consensus guideline for early stage breast cancer was developed and analyzed, and how it has impacted on clinical care for breast cancer. Reference: Moran MS, Schnitt SJ, Giuliano AE et al. Society of Surgical Oncology-American Society for Radiation Oncology Consensus Guideline on Margins for Breast-Conserving Surgery with Whole-Breast Irradiation in Stages I/II Invasive Breast Cancer. J Clin Oncol. 2014.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants will be able to
1. To describe the need for a consensus definition for BCT for early-stage breast cancer.

2. To review the meta-analysis results of the invasive and DCIS systematic review.

3. To discuss the other important clinical data that were considered by the margins panel prior to developing the consensus recommendations.

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)TM. Physicians should only claim the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
