

Intersection of Ageism, Racism and Class: What COVID-19 Reveals Locally and Globally

Thursday, July 9, 2020 • 9:30 a.m. – 11:00 a.m. EST

Join Drexel University College of Nursing and Health Professions for a conversation with scholars from three different countries to look at the intersection of ageism, racism and class through the lens of COVID-19, and how intersectionality differs locally and globally. Specifically, the panel will examine how stigma about age coupled with historic systemic and structural racism have been revealed and heightened by the pandemic.

THIS PROGRAM IS SPONSORED BY:

AARP® Real Possibilities
Pennsylvania

DREXEL UNIVERSITY

AgeWell
Collaboratory

College of Nursing and Health Professions

Board of Global Healthcare Engagement

Click here to register: <https://bit.ly/3hJ8QiS>

MODERATOR:

Dean Laura N. Gitlin, PhD, FGSA, FAAN
Dean and Distinguished Professor
Drexel University, College of Nursing and Health Professions

PANELISTS:

John Beilenson, MA
President of SCP (formerly Strategic Communications and Planning), a certified B Corporation and socially responsible communications and public relations firm.

Ebony White, PhD, LPC, NCC, ACS
Assistant Clinical Professor
Department of Counseling and Family Therapy
Drexel University, College of Nursing and Health Professions

Jean Gajardo Jauregui, PhD, OT
Researcher at San Sebastian University, and University of Chile, Santiago, Chile

Hans-Werner Wahl, PhD
Senior Professor of Psychological Aging Research
Institute of Psychology
Heidelberg University, Germany