“Carcinoma of the Cervix: Update on Classification, Pathologic Evaluation and Staging”

Thursday, December 5th, 2019

12:30 p.m.

Brady Auditorium– BML 131

Host: Natalia Buza, M.D.

There is no corporate or grant support for this activity. This course will fulfill the licensure requirement set forth by the State of Connecticut.

ACCREDITATION

The Yale School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Attending physicians, researchers, house staff, fellows, residents, medical students, nurses.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT

The lecture will present, in a didactic format, the most recent changes in the staging classification of cervical cancer and the current tools recommended in the pathologic evaluation of prognostic variables such as tumor size, focality and pattern of invasion. It will also describe the shifts in the classification of endocervical adenocarcinoma with emphasis on clinically relevant variants.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants will be able to:

- Recognize the changes in FIGO staging classification of carcinoma of the uterine cervix;
- Assess important prognostic pathologic variables in cervical cancer such as tumor size and multifocality;
- Describe the morphologic spectrum of HPV-related endocervical adenocarcinoma;
- Recognize the clinical importance of endocervical glandular neoplasms unrelated to HPV infection, in particular gastric-type adenocarcinoma.

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
