YALE UROLOGY EXPANDS TO WESTERLY, RHODE ISLAND; ADDS NEW FACULTY

On April 15, Yale Urology's newest clinic will open to patients at 35 Wells Street in Westerly, Rhode Island. Under the name Westerly Urology, patients living in eastern Connecticut and Rhode Island will have an additional location to choose for their urology care.

We are also pleased to announce two new physicians will be joining our faculty and caring for patients in Westerly: Dr. Erik Enquist and Dr. Franklin Leddy, who currently practice together under Champion Urology in the 35 Wells Street location.

Dr. Enquist completed his residency training at the George Washington University Medical Center and at the National Cancer Institute. He cares for patients with urologic cancers and specializes in men's health. Dr. Leddy trained at University of Colorado Medical School and specializes in the care of adult and pediatric patients with voiding dysfunctions, incontinence, and kidney stones, as well as urologic cancers.

DR. JAIME CAVALLO JOINS YALE UROLOGY AS ASSISTANT PROFESSOR

We are excited to announce that Jaime Cavallo, MD, MPHS will join Yale Urology on September 1 as an Assistant Professor. Dr. Cavallo's focus is on male genitourinary reconstructive surgery, including for urethral stricture disease, urinary incontinence, Peyronie's disease, and erectile dysfunction. She will care for patients in New Haven as well as at the Veterans Affairs (VA) Connecticut Healthcare campus in West Haven.

Dr. Cavallo received her medical degree from the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine and her Master of Population Health Sciences at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, Missouri. She completed a National Institutes of Health (NIH)-funded career development award in comparative effectiveness research at Washington University School of Medicine. Dr. Cavallo also completed a residency in Urology at Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai, and a Male Genitourinary Reconstructive Urology fellowship at Lahey Hospital and Medical Center.

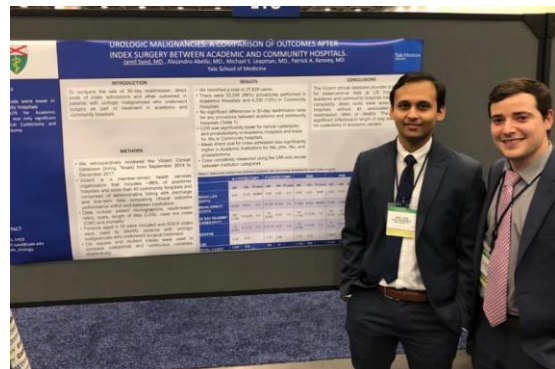

POSTER PRESENTATIONS AT GU ASCO

At the recent ASCO Genitourinary Cancers Symposium in San Francisco, Juan Javier-Desloges, MD, PGY-4 presented a poster on his work with Michael Leapman, MD: "National Trends and Pathological Outcomes of Neoadjuvant Chemotherapy Among Patients with Micropapillary Variant Urothelial Carcinoma of the Bladder."

Jamil Syed, MD, PGY-2 also presented a poster, "Urologic Malignancies: A Comparison of Outcomes After Index Surgery Between Academic and Community Hospitals," an analysis of data from the Vizient Clinical Database.

MEN'S HEALTH BLOG LAUNCHES

Stan Honig, MD, launched a Men's Health blog to provide additional information on topics of general interest and to answer often-asked questions by patients in his clinic. The blog is available on our website, and will be updated regularly to address patient concerns.

"The Art of Titrating and Optimizing Penile Injection Therapy for Patients with Erectile Dysfunction" was Dr. Honig's first post, which can be viewed here.

MEET ANNIE ALEVRAS

Annie Alevras, RN, BSN, CNOR has been employed by Lawrence + Memorial Hospital for 16 years, serving most recently as the Clinical Coordinator of the OR. In early 2018, she shifted into a new role as Patient Care Services Manager, helping to facilitate the opening of a new clinic at L+M for Yale Urology. Annie will also be serving in this same capacity at Yale Urology's newest clinic in Rhode Island: Westerly Urology.

Working in conjunction with Diana Glassman from Yale Urology and Sahel Shwayhat from Lawrence + Memorial, Annie has worked hard to get the office up and running for patients, and while her team has everything they need and processes in place are working, their office is still very new. Annie meets often with other outpatient managers as well, reviewing best practices and sharing feedback.

Overall, the new office is very exciting for patients based on feedback Annie has received. They are happy to have exams and procedures done locally, as well as having the Artemis available on-site. They love the atmosphere of the new space, and how the doctors (Drs. Joseph Brito, Joseph Renzulli, and Timothy Tran) are very attentive and take time to explain everything.

Patient satisfaction is near and dear to Annie. In her previous role, she served on the Patient Satisfaction Committee of L+M, so ensuring her team provides the highest level of customer service to all patients is important.

"It is already stressful for a patient when they need to come in for an appointment or procedure," said Annie. "But to know patients are coming in to our office, are getting the best care, and having a positive experience from check-in through to each person they encounter— that is my main goal for every patient and is what I am most proud of."
