NEEDS ASSESSMENT

Metastatic disease as a specialty in radiation oncology is not yet established in many institutions. There is a clinical knowledge gap in how to start a metastatic disease program in radiation oncology.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants will be able to:

1. Define the need for metastatic disease as its own specialty.
2. Establish the clinical infrastructure of the metastatic disease service.
3. Establish the research infrastructure of the metastatic disease service.

DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Yale School of Medicine designates this live activity for 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)TM. Physicians should only claim the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
