Grievance Procedures

Graduate School Conduct and Grievance Procedures

Conduct & Grievance Procedures | Yale Graduate School of Arts and Sciences

For students who feel they have been treated unfairly in some capacity by an individual or group within the University, several courses of action are available. First, the advice of the thesis advisor, the Graduate Student Affairs Committee or either of the Program Co-Directors may be sought. Alternatively, if the matter is one which is not appropriate to raise within the Program administrative structure, other University agencies may be contacted, which include: 1) The Dean of the Graduate School; or 2) The Deputy Provost (Stephanie Spangler), whose office is especially concerned with matters relating to equal rights for minorities and for women. The Office for Women in Medicine can also be contacted. It is located in L202 SHM; 785-4680. In addition, the Dean of Graduate Studies has appointed a standing Grievance Committee to receive and review student complaints of sexual harassment. This Committee is comprised of six members (2 faculty; one member of the Graduate School Administration; two students; and one counselor). Students may bring questions about procedure, seek informal advice, or present a complaint to any member of the board, either orally or in writing.

As members of this community, we share a responsibility to cultivate an environment in which our academic endeavors and personal lives may thrive. To maintain that environment, we rely on personal conduct and professional integrity grounded in mutual respect and trust. These are our core institutional values.

The Programs & Policies handbook contains a comprehensive list of the Graduate School's regulations and policies. Violations of these regulations will be referred to the Graduate School Committee on Regulations and Discipline.

Additionally, please seek help from an adviser or mentor, or from one of our graduate school deans if you need support or guidance.

The Graduate School Procedure for Student Complaints

<http://catalog.yale.edu/gsas/yale-university-resources-services/>

Title IX Coordinators

<https://provost.yale.edu/title-ix>

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 protects people from sex discrimination in educational programs and activities at institutions that receive federal financial assistance. Sex discrimination includes sexual harassment, sexual assault, and other forms of sexual misconduct. The University is committed to providing an environment free from discrimination on the basis of sex.

Yale College, the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, and the professional schools have each designated a deputy Title IX coordinator, reporting to Stephanie Spangler, Deputy Provost for Health Affairs and Academic Integrity and the University Title IX Coordinator. Coordinators respond to and address specific complaints, provide information on and coordinate with the available resources, track and monitor incidents to identify patterns or systemic issues, deliver prevention and educational programming, and address issues relating to gender-based discrimination and sexual misconduct within their respective schools. Coordinators are knowledgeable about, and will provide information on, all options for complaint resolution, and can initiate institutional action when necessary. Discussions with a Title IX coordinator are confidential.

Professional Ethics

All degree-seeking students complete in-person and online training sessions during their first year of study. These training modules focus on the ethical issues that underlie our scholarship and our collegial interactions and provide information about accessing campus resources.

Academic Integrity

Academic integrity is a core institutional value at every university. We maintain the highest standards of honesty and fairness in our scholarship and research. We respect one another and take responsibility for our conduct. These values govern our community as we work to study, educate, and advance knowledge. Excellent scholarship rests on honest originality, and this honesty takes many forms. It means, among other things, truth in presentation, diligence and precision in citing works and ideas we have used and acknowledging our collaborations with others.

Academic dishonesty has not been a substantial problem in the Graduate School, but any incidence at all is unacceptable. To promote excellence in scholarship and research, the Graduate School has created several programs designed to foster an environment imbued with academic integrity.

Resource Office on Disabilities

The Resource Office on Disabilities (ROD) facilitates accommodations for all Yale students with disabilities who register with and have appropriate medical documentation on file in the ROD. Documentation may be submitted to the ROD even though a specific accommodation request is not anticipated at the time of registration. Early planning is critical. Requests for housing accommodations must be made in the housing application. The required first step for a student with a disability is to contact the Resource Office on Disabilities to initiate the process of obtaining disability-related accommodations. Registration with the ROD is confidential.

Student Accessibility Services

<https://sas.yale.edu>

The primary mission of Student Accessibility Services (SAS) is to facilitate individual accommodations for all students with disabilities throughout the entire University, and by so doing, work to remove physical and attitudinal barriers, which may prevent their full participation in the University community. Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act guide much of our work.

Pay Periods

The Graduate and Professional student payroll runs on a semi-monthly schedule of payments (the 15th and last business day of each month). Instructions to set up Direct Deposit and for using all the features of the “My Pay and Info” site are available at: <http://your.yale.edu/> using the “Workday” link.

Important funding information for 4th year and above students:

The majority of the 4th year and beyond Graduate Students are funded with the Assistant in Research Category (RGs) unless they have their own Private Grant or a PI is paying with non-federal monies. RGs must be used when your PI is paying your stipend with a Federal Grant. Federal Grants consider students work on a PI federal grant as “a taxable service.” In the first three years, students are paid with multiple funding sources, not PI federal grants which that in most cases, are not taxable to the student.

The Research Assistant appointment is subject to tax withholding unlike the stipend payment so it may appear that your net pay is less. Once your Fall paychecks are processed, you can look at your payslip on-line by going to <http://your.yale.edu/> and log in using your NetID and Password, select the link for Workday (on the top of the page) and select the Pay worklet and view Payslips, you will be able to see the detail of your fellowship payments, including the tax withholding. It is important to note that stipend fellowships are taxable even though there are no withheld amounts.

<https://gsa.yale.edu/ctf>

Through a fund from the Graduate School, the GSA awards $120,000 annually in conference travel funding for GSAS students. Students are annually eligible for $500 (pre-candidacy)-$750 (post-candidacy) towards conference travel on a rolling basis.

The Conference Travel Fund aims to support the professional development of graduate students by providing financial assistance to present papers and posters at conferences on a competitive basis.

Department of Pathology and Molecular Medicine Travel Fellowship

External Fellowships and Combined Award Policy

To benefit both their current work and their future career prospects, students are strongly encouraged to seek funding from external agencies through grants. These awards, sponsored by both public and private agencies, confer distinction on a student who wins an award in a national competition. They are often more generous than the fellowships the University is able to provide.

During the twelve-month academic year (September 1–August 31), the Graduate School's stipend award, made at the time of admission, may be used to supplement the sum of all external stipend awards to a maximum stipend equal to the total of the standard department/program stipend plus $4,000. If the sum of the Graduate School's initial stipend award and all outside awards exceeds this limit, the Graduate School's stipend award will be reduced accordingly. In instances where an external award does not cover the full twelve-month academic year, the combined award will be determined by prorating the combined award over the period when the internal and external awards overlap.

Students who receive external fellowships providing yearly stipends that are more than the total of the standard department/program stipend plus $4,000 will retain the full external fellowship funding and will receive no university supplement.

Ph.D. Student Family Support Policy

<https://gsas.yale.edu/resources/graduate-financial-aid/family-support-subsidy-parenting-phd-students>

If you are a Ph.D. student with a child or children, we know that you have additional expenses. We want you and your children to thrive while you are at Yale and are pleased to provide an additional financial subsidy to assist you with family expenses. The subsidy is disbursed differently depending on the type of insurance coverage you elect. An annual subsidy of $6,600 per year is available to Ph.D. students with a child under the age of 18 (applied automatically to pay for spousal health coverage if a student elects the Family Plan at Yale Health). An annual subsidy of $1,000 per child is available for each additional child under the age of six.

Everything you need to know to apply for this assistance is below. Developed in consultation with the Graduate Student Assembly, the Dean's Emergency Fund enables students to continue making academic progress despite unanticipated, extreme financial hardships. Each funding request is eligible for an award of up to $2,000.

**To discuss your situation and eligibility for the fund, contact Associate Dean Allegra di Bonaventura.*

Eligibility

The fund is open to all terminal master's and Ph.D. students registered full-time in degree programs of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. Funding may be used to cover things such as: Temporary housing for displacement due to fire, flood, or other unforeseen circumstances; Emergency dental expenses for students (e.g., root canal). Dental emergencies may qualify for up to 50% of the unreimbursed cost, up to $2,000; Travel costs related to unexpected crisis or death in the immediate family.

- Costs must be incurred while the student is registered full-time in a terminal master's or Ph.D. program in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. Costs incurred during a previous academic year are not eligible.
- The student should intend to continue in the degree program once the emergency is resolved.
- If a student is unsure about eligibility, they should contact Dean di Bonaventura.

Applicants should provide a brief description of the emergency situation and the amount of funding requested, including a listing of anticipated or incurred emergency expenses.
