

SCIENCE WRITING for Grants and Scientific Manuscripts

A "must-attend" workshop for all scientists seeking to improve their science writing and communication skills

At this workshop, you will:

- gather critical insight and practical advice on science writing
- learn how to organize and compose your thoughts and apply winning writing principles within your next proposal
- discover how to optimize composition, style, impact, and format of grant proposals
- study and address the most common writing pitfalls and errors
- be trained to achieve maximum impact with the reader and reviewer in mind

Presenter:

Angelika Hofmann, PhD

Grantwriter, editor, and author of

Scientific Writing and Communication – Papers, Proposals, and Presentations, Oxford University Press, 2009, and of Writing in the Biological Sciences, Oxford University Press, 2012.

Friday, June 27, 2014 ~ NOON-1:15pm
Harkness Auditorium (SHM), 333 Cedar Street

To sign up for this workshop, register at:

https://bmsweb.med.yale.edu/tms/tms_enrollments.offerings?p_crs_id=1627&p_std_id= or send a reply email to melanie.smith@yale.edu to let us know you plan to attend.

Sponsored by the Yale Office of Grant and Contract Administration